Pope Francis

Being Christian does not mean defending yourself with an ideology in order to move forward. To be Christian is to be free, because we have confidence, because we are docile to the Word of the Lord, listening to what the Lord says about justice, charity, forgiveness and mercy. To be a Christian is to be free through trust in God.

And finally: Today in the gospel we hear once more the call of those first four disciples of the Lord, Peter, Andrew, James and John. Notice how simple the call is: “Come, follow me”, and how, without hesitation, these men leave everything behind, their livelihood, their businesses and even their father, and set off into the unknown. Today we live in a world where there is so much noise, so many distractions, yet the Lord is still calling out to each one of us “Come, follow me”. This invitation may not mean for us anything quite as radical as it did for the disciples in the gospel; it may not be a call to leave everything behind in order to follow where the Lord leads. Yet it is a call inviting each one of us to follow the Lord in a way which only we, as individuals, can. The question is: Are we listening for the voice of the Lord as He calls to us through the noise?

May God bless you all. Fr. Craig
